Who Will Lead Telangana BJP?

Additionally, Chintala Ramachandra Reddy, Gangidi Manohar Reddy, NVSS Prabhakar, and Kasam Venkateswarlu are also aspiring for the role. Etala Rajender is seen as a strong contender, but reports suggest he faces opposition within the party. Meanwhile, MPs Arvind and Raghunandan Rao are reportedly lobbying intensively in Delhi for the post. Notably, MLA Raja Singh has declined any interest in taking up the position.

Challenges for Current Leadership

Union Minister Kishan Reddy, the current Telangana BJP president, has held the position four times and led the party during the 2023 assembly elections. However, balancing his responsibilities as a state president and a key central minister for coal and mines has created significant work pressure. Given these challenges, the party is considering appointing a new leader to focus solely on state-level responsibilities.

Social Equations at Play

The BJP appears to be weighing social equations in its decision. Over the past decade, Telangana BJP presidents have hailed from both OC and BC communities. With one OC and one BC leader already serving in the central cabinet, the party may aim to maintain a balance in leadership representation.

There is also speculation about whether the party will prioritize leaders with long-standing BJP affiliations or consider those who joined from other parties. The selection is expected to align with the party's strategy for the upcoming elections.

Decision Expected by Month-End

The BJP is likely to finalize its decision on the new state president by the end of January. With social dynamics and election preparations in focus, the leadership choice will play a crucial role in shaping the party's prospects in Telangana.
